As told by mom, Caroline

Right: Nora and Dad*

In June 2018, Nora was diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumor at two years old, while her baby brother, Mac, was just eight months old. Nora had surgery and treatments with her parents, Caroline and Alex, always by her side. This beautiful family came through their journey and wanted to find a way to be there for other families facing a life-threatening illness with their child. This is Nora's update as told by mom, Caroline. (continued on page 5)

from our executive director

Over the past year, we have all experienced uncertain and often challenging times, and our hearts are with you all. For the families we serve, their stress and isolation has increased and supporting them during the life-threatening illness of their child has been more important than ever.

The trust and generous support of our community have allowed this work to continue. With the help of financial, in-kind and volunteer support, we did not miss a crucial delivery to the families we serve in a medical crisis.

At the core of everything we do is the foundation of trust. We are honored to have the trust of the hospitals who refer patients to receive our care, for the trust of you and all in our community to help us do this work. Most of all, we're humbled and grateful for the trust we have from families who allow us to walk by their side throughout the critical illness of their child.

Every family's journey is unique, and yet they share the similar stresses of unexpected financial hardship while caring full-time for their sick child. Because of the trust that is shared, we are able to bring each family a sense of community and the knowledge that they are not alone.

Currently, more than 200 families are actively being served each day (a 20% increase from 2019), and our community continues to bring each family support and essential supplies as they navigate through a frightening time in their lives.

We are grateful for your trust and for you being a part of There With Care, helping to ensure we can continue to show up for families in a crisis, with needed love and care, when it is needed most.

With gratitude,

Paula DuPre' Pesmen

For us, this time is a perspective change. Not that you want to go through something like that, you know, but there's hope out there. If there's one thing that I felt from our time with There With Care it's the volunteers and everyone we met were wonderful people, who then inspired us to become a part of the community.

At the end of the school year, our school, where Nora goes and I work, has a service day. And this year, we really were thoughtful about making the service personal, so we chose There With Care. Nora got to be our personal connection. Third-grade classes made movie night kits and Nora's preschool class was able to make activity bags for There With Care to take to the hospital, and also for the siblings at home who are separated from their sisters and brothers during treatments and hospital stays. It was really meaningful for Nora to be able to give back to an organization that helped us through so much. And it was great to be able to see the students in our learning community giving back to such an important cause. It's definitely something that we will continue to do in the future, because it was really very powerful.

Nora got to tell her preschool class that she got to have her activity bag delivered to her when she was in the hospital. It was so special for us to be able to make them for other kids that are going through long hospital visits, and we got to give back. Nora's classmates were so caring, and they were happy to make them. I also got to go into the third-grade classes and personally thank them, which was emotional seeing them helping other families, and it's also very hopeful and inspiring.

When I was watching the preschool class putting bags together, it was almost surreal seeing Nora with her friends. I was thinking, look where we are. I couldn't believe it, here we are, on the other side able to help kids going through something similar. I had all the happy tears in the world. And proud, really proud, seeing our Miracle Girl paying it forward.

For families, those activity bags mean that there are people out there thinking about you. There are people out there knowing what you're going through. And there's somebody out there that knows that they can make a difference in the darkest time of your life. Although it might seem small, to have that cute little bag put together and gifted to you means the world when you see your kid smile, when you're going through all of that. You live for those moments.

That all took me back to thinking how we lived and breathed for just a smile from Nora during those days. I know if those bags bring a smile to kids' faces, in turn they will bring smiles to their parents' faces, and that's so important.

Nora and Mom

Nora is doing well now and she's going to kindergarten in September. She loves her brother, her friends and school, and every day is the best day. It's just joyful and we feel so grateful and fortunate to be pushing play on our life and what that feels like.

Community in Action

Larry H. Miller Toyota Boulder Surprised Paula With a Grant

Larry H. Miller Toyota Boulder

Surprise! It's not every day that a community partner walks in the door with a surprise donation, but Larry H. Miller Toyota Boulder took that generous action. During the pandemic, they walked into our offices, masks and all, and shared the news that our grant was awarded. This needed support was a tremendous lift, due to the increased numbers of families being served, helping 44 more families in 2020 than any other year. The team at Larry H. Miller Toyota Boulder also joined us for our golf tournament, helping us bring our community together to ensure we never missed a delivery and that families were never alone.

K Financial Assembled Easy Meal Care Bags

K Financial

Together Making a Difference. The K Financial team has been a wonderful partner to There With Care in supporting families. Each quarter, as a company they have been purchasing and assembling 30 Easy Meal Care Bags for families, providing hospital bedside food for the parents and siblings. They have purchased new bikes and helmets for some of the patients and siblings we serve and they have generously supported our fundraising events that are crucial to our daily work. We are honored to have the help and trust of the K Financial family and appreciate their thoughtfulness in being there for families in a medical crisis.

Conscience Bay Company Employees Organized the Boulder Warehouse

Conscience Bay Company

Community Builders. The amazing team at Conscience Bay Company has become a part of support for families in so many ways. It is always a joy to see employees volunteering by assembling Care Bags for deliveries to families. In addition to their hands-on volunteer service, they have also helped hold the organization through event sponsorships, generous donations, including There With Care in their Summer Series community events, through in-kind donations, and with the generous donation of needed space for the upcoming fall pop-up event, Curated Closet. As an all-around friend and partner to There With Care, the Conscience Bay family has modeled community through their service and by giving from their hearts.

Brooke at MAX with Donations Collected During MAX CARES Drive

MAX Cares

With Love and Care. At a time when there was so much unknown, one thing was clear: Max Martinez and the MAX Clothing Stores family were going to wrap their arms around the families we serve. MAX Clothing Stores immediately launched drives of in-kind items in their stores in Boulder, Denver and Aspen. They reached out to their community to share the MAX CARES online wish list and helped with event and holiday sponsorships. Through it all, Max and his MAX Clothing Stores brought the crucial needed support to make sure that deliveries of everyday essentials continued. We are truly grateful for their partnership in care and for their ongoing support that eases the daily stresses for families in a medical crisis.

Optimal Home Care with Weekly Delivery of 25 Easy Meal Care Bags

Optimal Home Care

The Power of Care. Since 2018, Optimal Home Care has supported our work and helped to ensure we have the products needed for families through their service and donations. During that time, they have made 4,950 Easy Meal Care Bags filled with food so that families do not have to leave their child's bedside for something to eat. During the pandemic, their team continued to purchase and assemble 25 Easy Meal Care Bags each week, ensuring families received much-needed support. Optimal Home Care also generously supported our fundraising efforts and have attended our events. We love this community and are grateful for our continued partnership with Optimal Home Care.

Staff and Volunteers After Unloading Truck Full of Supplies from Amazon

Amazon

Fresh Connections. We are fortunate to launch a new partnership with Amazon. At a time when we are supporting more families than ever, the need for in-kind donations has increased dramatically. With the generous help of Amazon, There With Care has collected biweekly donations of fresh and frozen food, nonperishables, cleaning products and household items. This consistent supply has helped us keep up with the needs of families and bring them day-to-day support that allows them to have more time together. After bringing supplies back to our warehouse, we also have the generous support of our amazing Volunteers to help our team sort and stock items so that they are ready to be delivered to families.

Easy Meal Care Bag Assembled by Twitter Employees

Twitter Boulder

Grateful for the Twitter Community. Through the generosity of the Twitter Boulder family, There With Care has been honored with their support of donated laptops, iPads, food drives and Easy Meal Care Bags. With their help, families and children in a medical crisis received holiday meals and gifts when they were facing tremendous isolation. As the number of families There With Care was serving and the needs increased, many of the incredible employees of Twitter Boulder made personal donations, which the company matched, to ensure we had resources to continue deliveries to families. We are humbled to receive this meaningful support from the Twitter Boulder community.

Marianna Delivering Her Handmade Blankets for Families

Hands and Hearts

Volunteers share their talents in creative ways to show families and children facing a critical illness that a community of care surrounds them. Volunteers make blankets for patients, hats for babies in the Neo-Natal ICU, and others craft handmade cards. Many volunteers take the time to decorate grocery bags that are filled with everyday essentials and delivered to families. All these little touches let families know they are not alone. Thank you to our caring, creative community for holding families in their hearts.

With Your Help, we're honored to be there for the families we serve. # Caring Together

Even though we were unable to gather in person during the height of the pandemic, care for families and children in a medical crisis continued, thanks to the generosity of Volunteer Groups and businesses who assembled Care Bags remotely and from their homes. With their gift of time, these groups have eased everyday burdens for families by creating 1,850 Easy Meal Care Bags for hospital bedsides, 425 Activity Care Bags for patients and siblings, 250 Cleaning Product Bags, 320 Family Toiletry Bags, 90 Feminine Care Bags, 250 Holiday Gift Bags, 80 Mini Meal Care Bags, 390 Movie Kits, 195 Parent Care Bags, 150 Stuffed Stories for patients and siblings, 13 No-Sew Blankets and 168 Cookie-Making Kits. # Wrapping Families In Care

Beautiful Rosalee has given her heart and talent through the years to send love to families. An avid sewer, she has collected colorful fabrics and made nearly 350 baby quilts for the families we serve. When Dana from There With Care picks up her finished blankets, Rosalee shares how she tells the characters on the fabrics about the children they will be soon enveloping in warmth. As Rosalee sews with love, every blanket she makes from her generous heart also connects her with families as she sends them a gift of comfort and a care.

Triple the Love

When these three beautiful girls arrived early, their big sister, Ai-vy, eagerly awaited them at home. Ai-vy couldn't wait to snuggle with the triplets and help her parents take care of them. One of the packages a volunteer delivered to the family included a baby doll for Ai-vy. She practiced holding it gently and carefully, so that she would be all ready when her sisters came home from the hospital. Thank you for helping families with everyday essentials, along with extra touches of care, which give them the gift of time together.

Denver7

A huge thank you to Denver7 for their generous support of our work. With their help, There With Care is able to reach more people in our community to share with them ways they can make a meaningful difference in the lives of a family with a critically ill child. It is an honor to have their partnership in delivering essential services to families when they need it most, and we are grateful to have their trust.
